Foreword

Balance is important in this world and in the life of man. It is something that keeps the earth moving and it gives life to people. In order to create balance, there should be two opposing sides – good and evil, dark and light. Life is full of different oppositions and this is one of the most interesting parts of life. Opposition is important, as it provides an equilibrium in every man's life. These opposing sides are actually what make the world more exciting and enjoyable.

In a spiritual perspective, there are also two opposing sides that we can see – lightworking and darkworking. These are both essential paths to greater motivation, greater power and greater awareness. Lightworkers and darkworkers are said to be similar in various ways. However, their primary difference is actually the way they direct their energy and focus. The two different paths may be different, but they actually complement each other.

Lightworkers and darkworkers are people who have consciously chosen to go to extremes when it comes to their attitudes towards others. Lightworkers choose one extreme and darkworkers choose the other.

Some say that darkworkers are evil. Well, this might be true because of the common conception that people have when they hear the the word 'dark'. This is usually associated with evil and villains, and lightworkers have been perceived as good and the protagonists.

In this, let us all explore the actual realm of darkworkers. Let us begin to understand the real nature of their nature and the way they think.

We have been introduced to lightworking and taught the ways to become an effective lightworker. Now, let us all dive deeper into the real meaning of being a darkworker – the conscious, its mentality and all essential aspects that define its existence. Let us be familiar with the other side of the coin and point out its real value in order to create balance in life and its influence on unity.

Darkworkers and Unity

Chapter 1:

Darkworkers Basics

Synopsis

In making a key distinction between darkworkers and lightworkers, some might view the lightworkers as those who are enlightened and the darkworkers as those who are not. With this definition, one might perceive the darkworkers as those people who have chosen the darkworker's negative path and they become dysfunctional because their outer thoughts or minds have been aligned to their inner beings.

As a result, their logical thoughts aren't guided by the intuitive feelings they have. Rather, they are guided by the unreasonable motivations and desires of their subconscious shadows. This gives expression to all of the negative thoughts and desires in their personalities, which they have repressed and projected onto other people.

To help you fully understand the real meaning and purpose of darkworkers, it is important to have a better and an in-depth understanding of the basics of darkworkers.

The Basics

With the use of a very simple analogy, darkworkers can be thought of as blind men. They have lost their way in this world of confusing illusions. They experience difficulty in finding the right way because of the seemingly tangled world. Due to this, they gradually lose their sense of humor and may lose their good sense or sanity as well. Because they choose to detach their thinking minds from their hearts, they tend to behave like mechanical robots.

Ironically, darkworkers tend to do everything in all their power and efforts in order to prevent themselves from obtaining the most essential thing that they really need the most, which is compassion.

The darkworker's conspiracy can be easily recognized. By definition, confirmed darkworkers are those individuals who have made the reverse choice in a consistent manner not to recognize or align to the primary source of their being. Therefore, darkworkers are characterized by the unenlightened state of their separate conscious.

In addition, darkworkers are completely unaware of their inner being, which is the total opposite of lightworkers who know their real identity and meaning. Therefore, darkworkers are left with no choice but to identify their outer personalities, which are composed of the sum of all the desires, actions, emotions and thoughts that they have chosen.

Darkworkers are also said to be unconscious of the fact that we are all responsible for the kind of life we have. They do not understand that we're the creators of our own experiences by the choices we make. They also do not acknowledge the fact that it is not a matter of 'what happens' but by how we respond that creates what happens. They do not accept or understand these things.

Because they do not fully understand such things, dedicated darkworkers are inclined to perceive themselves as empowered creators who are the masters of life. Therefore, they try to manipulate, subjugate and control others in their effort to compensate for their disempowered state.

Darkworkers do not radiate inner peace because they act out of their internal conflict which leads to being judgmental of others as well as themselves. They are also characterized by negative feelings of grievance, anger, fear and guilt. They tend to be calculating and very serious by nature. They are considered as selfish individuals because the only thing that concerns them is what they can benefit from.

Darkworkers may also be defined as uncivilized individuals, practicing coercion and deception to subjugate others, whereas lightworkers may be defined as civilized individuals who practice a life of love and truth and educate others. While the two might seem to be polar opposites, they are in fact, polar complements.

Chapter 2:

Darkworker Mentality

Synopsis

Some people might actually label the path of a darkworker as an evil path. Some might regard them as negative people who do not know the meaning of love and peace. However, one must not fall into the trap of judgment.

It is important to note that darkworkers are not evil or pessimists and they are definitely not agnostics. They do not have any intention of destroying the world because they enjoy life. Their goal is not to hurt other people or bring destruction in to this world. They are not depressed or suicidal because they know that such acts would be stupid and weak.

In contrast to what others believe, darkworkers enjoy life. They just do whatever they please. They are dependent and no one and nothing can affect them. They set their own rules to follow, which makes them honest people. They just do what they believe and want and aren't concerned about pleasing other people.

To be able to fully understand their way of thinking you should take a closer look at their mentality.

Understanding the Darkworker Mindset

The energy of darkworkers flows inward. Where lightworkers create, darkworkers consumes. From a physical or earthbound perspective, a darkworker can actually have a destructive effect. They build their power by obtaining or draining it from others. For darkworkers, such a form of destruction is actually a natural and good act. Harming others, for them is morally no different to them than eating a meal.

To help you to understand the mindset of a darkworker, let me make a simple analogy. What is your view about eating animal flesh? Does it matter to you that an animal had to suffer and die so you could satisfy one of your own desires.

To other people, eating animal flesh is considered as an immoral act. This cannot really be justified except maybe when an individual's survival is in jeopardy. Robbing an animal of its life just to give yourself a momentary pleasure is viewed by some as an act of pure and unadulterated evil.

To some people, eating animal flesh is perceived as something that is completely natural. They consider animals as just a lower species and can always turn any animal into food. It does not matter how many animals suffer and die every day as long as their needs are completely satisfied. Many people can probably relate to animals with the varying attitudes or lightworkers and darkworkers.

To true darkworkers, the life of another person is as useless as the animal's life that they wish to eat. Other people's energy is nothing really more than a snack or a meal. If they harm or drain others on their pursuit to happiness or fulfillment, it is not really a big deal.

Most people have actually been socially conditioned to believe that it is not good to harm others and doing so for just personal gain or pleasure is completely evil. However, for a darkworker, whether an individual is harmed or not is not really important. Harming other people is not viewed as a sacrifice. When it comes to a darkworkers conscience, it is actually far different from a lightworker's. For darkworkers, letting go of an opportunity for personal gain will be regarded as negligent or evil. To them, it is just like turning down a very savory and delicious meal.

The primary frustration that darkworkers experience is that darkworking is not considered as socially acceptable. This means that they have to overcome a great amount of social resistance just to fulfill their goals. As a result, most darkworkers prefer to keep their polarities secret, just the same as a hunter who does not advertise to animals in the forest that he is coming to get and eat them.

Darkworkers are very honest with themselves, but they are generally not honest and open with other people regarding their attitudes towards others. To them, being honest is just creating resistance in other people and it makes it harder for them to advance.

Chapter 3:

The Conscious

Synopsis

Rather than directing their attention outwards, darkworkers focus their concentration and energy inwards. They become spiritual spelunkers who travel downwards into the caverns of the self, rather than outwards towards the 'light' and the sun.

Becoming a darkworker is not something that just happens to an individual. It is actually a conscious choice. If you decide to polarize, you are making a commitment to live a particular kind of life. It's similar to making a dedication to a certain field that will take a long time to master. You have to dedicate yourself to it in order to be able to be more familiar with it.

Darkworking requires a certain level of consciousness. When you polarize yourself as a darkworker, you're dedicating your own life to serve yourself. For darkworkers, the elevation of their consciousness is actually all that matters. This is often achieved in a pursuit of greater control and power of one's self. It is vital to have a deeper understanding of their conscious behavior to be able to fully understand their thoughts and their way of thinking.

The Darkworkers's Level of Consciousness

How can darkworkers experience a higher level of consciousness such as peace and love? The initial description of a level of consciousness is actually biased to the opposite of darkworking.

For darkworkers, the level of love that is unconditional is inwardly directed as love for one's self which is like a greatly concentrated form of ignorance. This might be expressed outwardly in a form of a conceited attitude. However, inwardly, the person is just embracing the idea that he or she is the most important individual in the world and therefore should act accordingly. Honoring such perspective can lead to a feeling of peace which is the opposed meaning of humility.

Darkworkers experience unconditional love through recognizing thinking that they are godly, so they adopt a life of service to themselves. On the contrary, lightworkers see God in other people, so they are adopting a life of service to what they believe to be the greater good.

Eventually, these paths lead to a similar place. When their level of consciousness becomes lower, they become even more distinct. When you go up in levels, it will become even harder for you to see the dividing line that separates the two. Then you will notice that the actions of darkworkers and lightworkers become increasingly the same. This is due to the fact that ultimately, service to others and service to yourself becomes a similar thing when you reach a certain level of consciousness and acknowledge it.

You can think of the concept in this way: human beings are individual cells in a greater and larger body. The path of the darkworker is to devote life in doing what is best for the individual cell. On the other hand, the path of the lightworker is to do what is best for the entire body. As an individual cell becomes conscious or more aware it will then realize that the different paths will lead to a similar place. Remember that a healthy body can't exist without the existence of healthy cells and vice versa.

When at a lower consciousness level, these two different paths seem distinct. This is because one individual cell does not yet have a better understanding about the things that are truly the best for the entire body or for itself. An individual cell will make a lot of mistakes and irrational decisions.

Darkworker cells compete with the others, taking some resources from them to be able to ensure their survival. Ultimately, there is a blockage against that cell in order to preserve the body's health. It will get punished because of its actions that hurt the body. This is what happens once a darkworker is not really conscious enough to recognize that his or her own good and the good of others is completely linked together.

If one cell within the body is greatly intelligent, it doesn't really matter if it's a darkworker or a lightworker. It would identify that its health as well as the health of the entire body are both good. It would also have the wisdom to make a decision that would enhance its well-being and the entire body simultaneously. This individual cell could serve as a model for other cells.

However, humans are not super intelligent. They do not have a far-reaching mental awareness or the clarity to make valuable decisions in every situation.

For darkworkers, the elevation of a person's consciousness is what really matters. This is obtained through their quest for power. They also want to control one's life and become the queens and kings of their universe. They also believe that it is possible to establish net gain for the benefits of their selves at others' expense.

Chapter 4:

Are Darkworkers Villains

Synopsis

There are various misconceptions about darkworkers and their nature. Even a lot of darkworkers do not fully understand what darkworkers are and what they do.

Some believe that darkworkers are evil, bad or villains. This is perhaps due to its name. Dark is often associated with shadows, dimness, mystery, sadness and gloom. This is maybe the primary reason why people, especially those who do not fully understand the concept of darkworking and the darkworker's behaviors, consider darkworkers as villains.

In reality, darkworkers rarely consider themselves as villains. In many cases, even those who enslave, murder, coerce and deceive have the orientation that they're just doing what seems to be best based from their point of view and what they think is the best for them, which from the point of view of others may seem immoral, psychopathic, sadistic, blind or even insane.

Dark is not really tantamount to evil. This chapter can help you to fully understand their nature and whether they are villains or not.

Learning the Real Nature of Darkworkers

Some wonder whether darkworkers are villains or hero's, good or evil. The first question that you have to ask yourself is 'what is evil'? Does it mean doing evil things? Does evil mean having selfish motives and goals, even when you are in fact doing good things?

The way darkworkers think is actually much more in a practical and realistic way. For them, it does not really matter what your goals or motives are because what matters most is what you do.

Are tigers and lions evil because they kill their prey? Surely nobody would actually say that they are. There's no difference between humans and animals in terms like this. We are serving one purpose and that is nature. By definition, there is nothing evil when we serve in harmony with nature. On the contrary, evil is actually defined as acting against nature's plan. When you really think about it, you will realize that darkworkers are neither evil or villains.

Darkworkers will do whatever it is that will serve them the best. Powerful and real darkworkers are very complex. They do neither evil or good. In various cases, being nice and good serves people much better than doing evil things. In the end, we will meet less enemies if we are kind, which will give ourselves an inner peace.

This is a common characteristic of most darkworkers that are powerful. You may never recognize that they are in fact darkworkers. Darkworkers focus on themselves and on achieving their goals.

Darkworkers also focus on making their lives better, rising above others, beating their enemies and becoming superior to everyone. They may act selfishly because what really concerns them is obtaining the best for themselves. They strive for power and they fear nothing but their own limitation.

Darkworkers are not villains neither evil. They are not pessimists. Their main goal is not to hurt other people or bring destruction into this world. They are also not depressive. What they want is power. Darkworkers take pleasure in life and they will do whatever benefits them the most.

If they like to be kind, then they will be kind, not because society wants them to be, but because doing so will serve them in the long run. They act and work in order to fulfill their desires and to obtain something that will benefit them. There is no moral rules from the world that can affect them because they have their own rules which they have set for their own life.

Being a darkworker involves living a superior way of life. They believe that there is only one life in this world. Therefore, one must take full advantage of it and take whatever it is that you can get.

Chapter 5:

Looking Into Yourself

Synopsis

Are you a darkworker or not? Do you play as a hero, villain or neither or the two in the tale of life? This is the best time to look at yourself a bit closer. Assess yourself. Do you have what it takes to become a darkworker? Do you possess the characteristics they often have?

Upon learning about and studying darkworkers and darkworking, you will be able to fully understand their nature and you will be able to identify the characteristics that both you and a darkworker possess. Through this, it will be easier for you to choose your own path. You will also gain clarity when it comes to decision making and you will gain the motivation needed to act.

If you want to determine whether you are a darkworker or not, you have to examine and evaluate darkworkers, their nature and their characteristics. Then, look deeper into yourself and point out if you possess the qualities that they have. You probably are a darkworker. Well, we are living in an intricate life that is full of misunderstanding and confusion. You do not need to fight it because if you do so, you will just fall into a trap of resistance. All you have to do is to accept the reality and do your best to become a better individual.

If you have made an evaluation of yourself and you are still confused about your life or your real self, then it would be a great idea to take a closer look at the characteristics of a darkworker.

Are You a Darkworker or Not?

This is one of the top questions that might pop up in your mind. Most likely, you are actually not, since the majority of people do not make the commitment needed to become a darkworker.

You have to understand that becoming a darkworker is not really something that just occurs overnight. Darkworking is actually a conscious choice that you make. An individual may have inclinations towards this polarity and when they decide to become a darkworker, they also make a commitment to live the kind of life that darkworkers are supposed to live.

Becoming a darkworker is the same as making a commitment to a certain profession or field of study that takes time to master, like becoming a competent concert pianist, a chess grandmaster or being trained for the Olympics. You will not just wake up one day and discover that you are suddenly a chess master or a black belt. You will also not wake up one day and realize that you are a darkworker or a lightworker. Polarizing as a darkworker is a great long-term commitment. It is not something that just happens by itself in an instant.

Darkworkers use their energy as well as the energy of those around them for their own benefit. This is a very self-oriented path. It is a path that focuses on advancing the personal agenda of a darkworker. The main goal of a darkworker is to gain a complete control over each aspect of their life, even if it means gaining and pursuing it at others' expense.

The decision to become a darkworker is a decision that you make with every inch of your life and your entire being. For others, it may be a very natural choice or they may feel it as a kind of calling. Others, on the other hand, need to spend a lot of time discovering both polarities to be able to make a commitment deliberately and consciously. However, most individuals decide not to polarize.

When you polarize as a darkworker, you are also dedicating your whole life to serving your own self. After this, your polarity will become the central focus of your life. It will almost become a part of your DNA.

Why do you Have to Polarize?

Well, the main reason for this is that you are prepared to have a conscious commitment to a particular kind of life. You polarize because you are now willing to devote yourself and your entire being to serve yourself. Such commitment will become your greatest purpose in life. It will also become the core of your life and of your identity.

In making this commitment, you will actually begin to know yourself more and on a level that you have never known before. When you make such a commitment and polarize, you will wake up each day knowing your purpose. This is due to the fact that you have defined your own purpose by the power of your conscious choices.

Chapter 6:

Making a Choice about Which Path to Take

Synopsis

Life is full of complexities, challenges and difficulties. Often, we just find ourselves in the middle of a crossroad, becoming even more confused about the right road to take. Sometimes, we are left with a lot of options and each of them seems to be good, in these cases making the right choice seems to be even more daunting.

The decision to become a darkworker or a lightworker is also a crucial decision. They may seem very different, but the fact is that these polarities complement each other. Both of them possess great characteristics that will boost yourself and will allow you to recognize the real you.

Things in this life are not always predetermined. Things happen based on your decisions, whether you are aware of it or not. Everything in this world is a product of your choices. You have the power to shape your own life and make this world a better place for you and for other people. What you need is to make the right choice and select the right path that you want to take.

Being either a lightworker or a darkworker is not easy, but you have to make a choice. You need to determine the right path you want to take. You have to choose the path that will bring you great joy, contentment and happiness to your life.

Villain, Hero or a Non-player Character – Which One are You?

Darkworking is actually a choice. It may be a choice that an individual may rather not make. Nonetheless, it remains a choice for conscious growth. Some people never make a decision to polarize as a darkworker in their whole life and never put forward a 100 percent commitment. However, it is only when such commitment is made that real power starts to flow through their lives.

In the span of your life, you can choose to become the villain or the hero, or perhaps the non-player character. The non-players are those passive types who watch the story starting to unfold from the sideline. Most individuals choose to be non-player characters, but the villain and the hero have more power to be able to direct how their life unfolds.

If you do not choose to become a villain or you do not choose to become a hero, then you are a non-player character by default. There is actually nothing wrong with being a non-player. However, you just need to be more aware that once you choose to be one, your fate is hugely at the mercy of villains and heroes. Non-player characters usually end up spending their entire life riding those waves that are created by villains and heroes, usually serving one side without even realizing it. If you act from love, then you are helping the hero in the story. However, when you act from fear, then you are serving the villains.

As said before, darkworking is a choice. Choosing to be a darkworker does not mean choosing to be evil. Doing things in fulfillment of your desire and purpose and in pursuit to your own happiness is not necessarily evil. What is important is that you recognize who you are and you do not allow any negative feelings to take away the real you. It is important for you to increase your level of consciousness.

By selecting a path to take and focusing on it, you will gain tremendous clarity when it comes to decision-making as well as motivation to work.

Being a darkworker is a constant choice. It is a lifetime commitment. Whatever character you choose, you have to live with it and serve your purpose. Look further into yourself and determine the role you play in your own life story.

You are the main character in the story that you also direct. No one is responsible for the decision you make. It may be influenced by others but still, you have the choice to be influenced or not. You are the character and the director of your own tale and its plot will be based on each choice you make.

You have the sole power to create the kind of life that you want. You may not realize it, but you have to understand that things happen as a result of your conscious choices. The power to make this world a better place for everyone is within you. Make the right choice and use such power to shape this world and make it a more wonderful place for everyone.

Conclusion

Polarizing is a highly personal choice. You do not wake up one day realizing that you are a darkworker. Polarizing requires a great emotional release from all the constraints of society and pursue a life that is centered on your personal gain and benefit, no matter what others feel and think. The process also means letting go of the restraints and conditions that society forces us to maintain.

Darkworkers are not villains and darkworking is not evil. Darkworkers may employ strategies or methods that other people might consider ruthless, deceitful, amoral and cruel to obtain their goal and succeed. Darkworkers will always calculate the best move in order to put them on top to be able to control others. They will also do whatever it takes them to reach the top.

Any person can be enlightened, as every individual is born enlightened. Polarizing is a commitment and choosing your own path implies that you have found your personal path towards enlightenment.

For other darkworkers, the darkworker path means being able to learn how to do a lot of things like working with the flow of energy, projecting dominance and power over insecurity and weakness and knowing how to benefit from the subtleties within the human psyche. This also means shaping their own environment so that it works to their advantage.

Complete control and freedom is the ultimate goal of every darkworker. This allows them to create and sustain their own reality.

The power to make your life more interesting and to shape the world into a more enjoyable place to live in is in your hands. Choosing to become a darkworker is a personal choice and if you choose to do so, you are making a commitment to live the kind of life they have.

Deliberating the darkworker within you will accelerate your path of personal growth. With this, you will gain an in-depth understanding of what is really the best for you, as a person and as an individual. This will take you down the right path so you can improve your life and make it even better every day.
